

Drawing with Thread

(art + social studies)

Twentieth century art is the most versatile in history. It is the reflection of a world expanding in science, travel and an individual's interpretation of life. In the past people followed tradition.

"Drawing with Yarn" is an interpretation of work by Wassily Kandinski in 1913. Kandinski is called the first totally abstract artist. Free flowing water color and line suggests but does not define images.

Grade Levels 5-8

Note: instructions and materials based on a class of 25 students. Adjust as needed.

Process

1. Measure the Masa to 10-1/2" x 15-1/2" pieces (in half). Do not cut but tear on the edge of the ruler to get uneven edges. Edges will look like hand made paper. Each student needs one piece 10-1/2" x 15-1/2" for background with more torn paper pieces on top.
2. Have students tear the paper in the 10 sheet assortment into random forms approximately 4" x 5".
3. Cover a table with plastic. Place all six mixing trays on the plastic. NOTE: White trays are best for mixing transparent watercolor. The plastic table cover will collect paint and mix with other papers as all torn paper is painted. Squeeze the three Blick Watercolors into the wells. Fill halfway to the top. Use one well for gold. Provide several water containers to clean brushes. Blick Liquid Watercolor is vibrant and handsome with the gold metallic applied over the top. Place the pieces on the background paper after painting.
4. After the paper dries, iron the paper to smooth the surface.
5. Lightly glue the pieces to the background. It does not have to be thick or on all of the back.
